BOVINE RHINOTRACHEITIS – VIRUS DIARRHEA PARAINFLUENZA3 – RESPIRATORY SYNCYTIAL VIRUS VACCINE, MODIFIED LIVE VIRUS, MANNHEIMIA HAEMOLYTICA PASTEURILLA MULTOCIDA BACTERIN-TOXOID

PREVENTING THE PREVENTABLE WITH AN EFFECTIVE COMBINATION.

An effective combination vaccine that helps protect cattle against some of the most common—and costly—viral and bacterial pathogens associated with Bovine Respiratory Disease (BRD).

INDICATIONS:
Shown to be effective for the vaccination of healthy cattle five months of age or older against Infectious Bovine Rhinotracheitis, Bovine Viral Diarrhea Type 1a, Bovine Viral Diarrhea Type 2, Parainfluenza, and Bovine Respiratory Syncytial Virus, and Mannheimia haemolytica and Pasteurella multocida.

INSTRUCTIONS:
Aseptically rehydrate the freeze-dried modified live vaccine with the accompanying bottle of bacterin-toxoid. Mix reconstituted vial well. Administer 2.0 mL subcutaneously in the side of the neck followed by a second dose of Mannheimia haemolytica-Pasteurella multocida (PMH BAC[™]) to be given 14 to 28 days after the first dose.

CAUTIONS:
Do not vaccinate pregnant cows. Do not use in calves nursing pregnant cows. Abortions may result. Store at 2° to 8° C. Use entire contents when first opened. Inactivate unused contents before disposal. Do not vaccinate within 21 days of slaughter.

Help calves build better immunity against respiratory disease with Inforce 3, One Shot BVD, and Bovi-Shield GOLD One Shot.

Choose Vaccines That Overcome IBR Dominant Antigen Interference

Typically, multiple respiratory vaccines are administered at the same time for convenience. But research shows that some vaccine antigens may interfere with the immune response to other antigens.^{1,2} As a result, some antigens may not deliver their full protective effect.

By applying 25 years of vaccine research and advanced manufacturing methods, Zoetis developed two unique solutions to help ensure its respiratory vaccines provide high levels of protection and help ensure cattle receive the maximum health benefits of immunization.

INFORCE 3 ONE SHOT BVD

INFORCE 3[™] Circumvents IBR Dominant Antigen Interference With Intranasal Administration

Intranasal administration of the combination respiratory IBR vaccine in calves 21 days of age allows IBR virus from maturing throughout the gut & lungs and interfering with antibody titer in the lungs. In contrast to oral Bovi-Shield GOLD vaccine given in the neck. As a result, the animal receives the maximum of antibody response from both vaccines.

BOVI-SHIELD GOLD

Bovi-Shield GOLD One Shot[™] is Built to Handle IBR Dominant Antigen Interference

Using enhanced manufacturing processes, Zoetis developed Bovi-Shield GOLD[™] 1 Shot One Shot vaccine to deliver the components of a single combination vaccine without compromising the efficacy and safety of the individual vaccines.

With the knowledge of IBR dominant antigen interference, Zoetis formulated Bovi-Shield GOLD One Shot to enhance effective protection against IBR and PE. Additionally, when given concurrently
